

Hello, I am Nathan Williams from Sandy Hook CT, and my sister has autism. Before having DDS our family life was much more stressful. Every day was spent waiting for Rachel's bed time so we could stop constantly following and caring for her. Every hour of the day between waking up and going to bed was spent feeding Rachel, or watching Rachel, or entertaining Rachel, or cleaning up after Rachel, or making plans for Rachel. Through DDS our lives no longer have to be controlled by the stress of monitoring her fifteen hours a day. Now Rachel has a new companion to be with, and mom has some time to relax.

Please stop the cuts to DDS.
